Now that we've gotten started with classes, we've had some time to reflect over the many changes we've implemented. Looking around the studio and seeing our faculty and students back in action has really warmed our hearts. Hearing and seeing the kids laugh and smile while dancing their hearts out brings pure joy to us. Together as a studio and community, we are proving that it is possible to gradually, cautiously, and safely dance in-person again. It's taken a huge effort by our staff and dance families, but we believe that we are here now serving up the wonders and powers of dance, because of how we reacted and persevered through all of those months.
